For People

People are at the heart of every data challenge. We work on data programs that make the world a better place to live for our families, friends, and neighbors.

We approach data holistically— starting with understanding users and use cases before writing a single line of code.

Understanding People
Product • Strategy • Service Design

We design for people, with people, and by people.

We uncover people's barriers when interacting with technology and translate those needs into iterative product roadmaps. Successful products start and end with people.

Building For People
DevOps • Data Engineering

We build applications using emerging technology trends while promoting practical and well-validated approaches.

We balance cutting-edge technology and architecture with the ability to deliver value within real-world constraints.

Discovering People
Data Analytics • Policy & Program Insight

We build models, visualizations, and algorithms to search for insights hidden within large and complex datasets.

Using those insights, we put data in the context of real people to identify how to improve the well-being of communities.
